

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In researching this genealogy of our family, I have relied on many people's time, memory, pictures, and information. I undertook this project after a visit from Charles H. Strange and his wife Len in about 1980-1981. He already had a vast amount of information that he so willingly shared with me including census, lineage sheets, an old account book, names, dates, and places. I don't feel as though I would have ever succeeded in obtaining genealogical records without his influence and help. Many thanks to Charles and Len.

Many other people also contributed with, family information, letters, pictures and discussion. Some are listed below:

Maudeen Strange Buie	Meridian, Mississippi
Arrie Strange Mitchell Dollard	Solana Beach, CA & Denver, CO
Betsy Strange Keller	Fairfield, Texas
Virginia Gae Strange Nelson	Houston, Texas
Elbert Clinton "Doc" Strange	Collinsville, Mississippi
Thelma Taylor Strange	Laurel, Mississippi

Essie Hamrick Crow	Waco, Texas
Ava S. and Frank Davis	Collinsville, Mississippi

OLD RECORDS AND EARLY HISTORY OF STRANGES

The following was taken from the Campbell Chronicles and Family Sketches in Virginia.

Strange

Many emigrants, bearing the name Strange, came to America in early times. In 1619 one of these in the employment of the British government under the command of Yeardley,---took passage in the ship George; returned to Great Britain and came again, with a brother, on the Pauline, and settled near Jamestown, Va., where he became a large land holder. A grant was given him, (with others) of 1290 acres near Jamestown, "extending into the woods," in recognition of meritorious service to the government, and was signed by Governor West (as recorded 1635 in Charles City county).

Alexander Strange was a private in the Lunenburg County Regiment under Major William Caldwell in September 1758.

The first of the name found in Campbell was John M. Strange, who was born in 1719 came to Virginia in 1747 and married that same year, Fannie Smith; in 1782 he patented 346 acres of land on the south fork of Falling river; purchased of Williston Talbot 332 acres on the north side of Morton's creek, a north fork of the south fork of Falling river, on both sides of Naked creek, extending from Burnley's to McReynold's line. His will, probated in 1815 mentions the children of his deceased son, James;---

The next excerpt is from Wurt's Magna Charta.

Fulk FitzWarin 5th, born 14 September 1251, died 24 November 1315. In 1276 he married Margaret, died 11 May 1336, daughter of Griffith de la Pole, Prince of Upper Powys and his wife Hawise Strange.

INTRODUCTION

This book traces the ancestry of some of the Stranges dating back to John Strange the Revolutionary War soldier from Virginia born in 1743. Neither time nor available information allowed me to trace all branches of the family.

According to Revolutionary War records John was born in Virginia; however, an old recorded handwritten lineage sheet indicated he came from Scotland or Ireland. I have not been able to determine which is accurate. Several John Stranges did live in Virginia during this time and earlier, and several John Stranges were in the Revolutionary War; however, not all were from Virginia.

The name Strange has probably been derived from many sources including: DeStrange, LeStrange, Strang, and Destraine. The only connection to our name that I have made is an identical passport issued to John under both Strange and DeStrange names. This was issued in the U. S. and allowed him to pass from South Carolina to Tensas. Both had exact wording except for the last name.

I will not attempt to include in this book things that are available elsewhere such as crests, general ancestry, etc...

I have to the best of my ability tried to be accurate in recording this information, if I have failed it was not deliberate, and you may feel free to correct it.

The following is an excerpt from The Last Plantagenets by Thomas B. Costain. It is concerning Stranges during the reign of King Edward I in England (1292-1307).

In earlier days it had been the custom to have Parliament meet at any place which suited the king. Edward I, the originator of so many common-sense regulations, decided this was wrong and that Westminster should be made the permanent parliamentary home. There were the best of reasons for this. A great nobleman never traveled without a long train of knights, men-at-arms, and servants, sometimes running into the hundreds. This was equally true of bishops, who felt the need of advisors, deans, almoners, and clerks of all degree; so many, in fact, that an ecclesiastical party would sometimes be a half mile long, some riding in litters, some on donkeys, some plodding along painfully on foot. Everyone shared the discomfort of a parliamentary meeting in the provinces, particularly the landholders of the neighborhood, who were expected to entertain distinguished visitors. Even the townspeople suffered, for the great lords would billet their retainers with them and neglect to pay the bills.

It is not on record that the bishops and barons received any payment as members of the House, but the compensation set for mere knights was four shillings a day and for plain citizens two shillings. This was not enough to pay the expenses incurred. Through five successive reigns the sheriffs of Lancashire petitioned to be exempt from sending members because there were no cities or boroughs which could afford the cost. One Sir John Strange, who sat for Dunwich, asked that he be given a cade and a half barrel of herrings instead of money, figuring that he would be ahead on that basis.

From, Peerage and Baronetage.

The Baroness Strange of Knokin, Hungerford, and de Moleyns (Elizabeth Frances Philipps). Her Ladyship was declared by a resolution of the House of Lords 17 Dec. 1920 to be a co-heir to the Baronies of BOTREAUX, HUNGERFORD, DE MOLEYNS, HASTINGS, STRANGE OF KNOKIN and STANLEY, and the abeyance in the Baronies of STRANGE OF KNOKIN, HUNGERFORD and DE MOLYNS was terminated in her favour by Letters Patent 23 Feb. 1921. She was b. 19 June, 1884; m. 27 April, 1916, 1st Viscount St. Davids, G.B.E. (d. 28 March, 1938), and has issue,

To the reader

In researching the genealogy of the Strange family over the past twelve years, I have met a lot of very nice people that were very willing to share their family history with me. In most cases we not only discussed our families, but visited churches, cemeteries, and old home places. In fact, I have been in so many cemeteries taking pictures, kneeling, caressing, groping, grasping, gapeing, scraping and fondling headstones to make out the inscription that I am sure a lot of people knew that I was "Strange"

Nevertheless I have enjoyed meeting several hundred very nice people and only "one grouch."

I hope you enjoy reading and tracing your ancestry in this book. Hopefully you will continue to add your lineage and family experiences to this book so that future generations can enjoy it also.

I have added blank lineage sheets for your convenience.

SOME DESCENDANTS OF JOHN STRANGE,
THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR SOLDIER FROM VIRGINIA

John Strange was born on February 2, 1743. He was married to Martha (Mary), of whom no maiden name has been traced. She was born on January 2, 1747.

John and Martha were the parents of Seth Strange and Starling Strange. It is possible that they were also the parents of two other sons, John Jr. and Allan but this has not been confirmed. Seth was born in Virginia in 1772 and died on April 19, 1851 in Franklin County, Georgia.

Starling was born in Virginia in 1776 and is thought to have died sometime in the 1850's in Mississippi.

It has been found from various sources that John and Martha lived in South Carolina for a while. For example, in 1794 and 1798 John served on a Petit Jury in Union County, South Carolina. This was traced from the minutes of County Court in Union County, South Carolina 1785-1799. Also, Starling & Seth served as Petit Jurors in Union County, South Carolina. This information also came from the minutes of County Court from 1785-1799. It is also shown in the Union County Heritage that in 1804 John & Martha sold 328 acres of land on the waters of Pacolet River and Thicketty Creek in South Carolina.

Revolutionary War records have shown that John Strange served in the 5th Virginia Regiment (War Department Folder 107) in the Revolutionary War. There were at least 3 John Stranges that fought in the Revolutionary War. They were from Kentucky, Ohio and Virginia.

The following was taken from Revolutionary War Records: Issued 26 June 1786, to John Strange, for duty in Brandon's Regiment Amounting to Thirty Four Pounds 11/5 Stl.

He served under the militia under Col. Brandon after the fall of Charleston. (A.A.7459;X3138.)

According to the book written by George Garnett Strange, John bought somewhere near 380 acres of land "on upper Nails Creek at the shoal where two streams come together, forming Nails Creek." He built a grist mill on Nails Creek--it was supposedly one of the first mills to be built in that area and is also where John and Martha lived the rest of their lives.

The following excerpt was taken from The Scottish-Irish Families of America by Charles A. Hanna.

Inscription upon a grave-stone in the church-yard of Hamilton, lying on the heads of John Parker, Gavin Hamilton, James Hamilton, and Christopher Strang, who suffered at Edinburgh, Dec. 7, 1666. Their Testimony is extant in Naphtali, p. 306:

Stay, passenger, take notice what thou reads;
At Edinburgh lie our bodies, here our heads;
Our right hands stood at Lanark, these we want,
Because with them we sware the covenant.

The name Nicholas Strange appeared in the Members of the Scottish Parliaments to 1707 as follows:

Nicholas Strange, Pittenweem, 1593.

The paragraph you are about to read was taken from The Surnames of Scotland by Black.

STRANG, Strange. Probably from OFr. estrange, foreign. Later the name through popular etymology was derived from Scots and N. Eng. strang, strong. Home le Estraunge was intente in the king's service in Scotland, 1255 (Bain, I, 1999). William Strange, burgess of Montrose, rendered homage, 1296 (ibid., II, p. 199). Thomas de (? for le) Strang held land in Aberdeen, 1340 (REA., I, p. 68), and John Strang was elected common councillor there in 1398 (CRA., p. 374). Walter Strang was one of an inquest at Forfar, 1438 (RAA., II, p. 546). William Strangh, a Scottish merchant, had license to import Scottish goods into England, 1495 (Bain, IV, 1619). Sir George Strang, a cleric, was notary in Orkney, 1542 (OSR., I, p.77). Henry Strang is the earliest mentioned schoolmaster in Dysart, 1579 (Dysart, p.39). Richard Strange, advocate in Edinburgh, 1555 (Protocols, I). Strang of Balcaskie, an old family in the East Neuk of Fife. Sir Robert Strange was a distinguished eighteenth-century engraver. An old surname in Orkney. There is also an old West Norse personal name Strangi, but the origin is most likely as given above.

NAMES AND PLACES

Strange Creek

A tributary of the Elk River, Birch D., Braxton Co. West Virginia.
GGWVal904, p. 143. NDA1933.

McWhorter (Border Settlers, pp. 185-86) states that before 1795 the name of this stream was Turkey Creek. The present name, he explains, came about after William Strange, Anne Strange's second husband, was lost on a surveying trip in the mountains. Using Adkinson's account, McWhorter relates that Strange's skeleton and rifle were found years afterwards; he corrects Adkinson's date from 1790 to 1795.

Sutton (Braxton, p. 41) calls Strange, "...the lost hunter...who perished after wandering destitute..."

Laidley (Charleston and Kanawha, p. 77) gives this account: " 'Strange is my name and I'm on strange ground and strange that it is that I cannot be found.' This was found on a Beech tree, on a creek of elk and the skeleton of a man and the rusty barrel of his gun nearby;...the tree and the creek are there and the creek is called 'Strange Creek.' "

SETH STRANGE

Seth Strange, born in Virginia in 1772 married Mary Dabbs and died on April 19, 1851 in Franklin County, Georgia. Seth and Mary had seven children. Their names were William, born on October 27, 1797; Elizabeth, Jesse, Seth Jr., Martha, Harrison, and John, respectively. No other birth dates are available except that Seth Jr. was born in about 1804.

As of 1955, George Garnett Strange reported that the very house that Seth lived in, which is located about three miles down Nails Creek was occupied and in good condition. This is probably where John died.

From George Strange's book, Some Georgia Stranges and Kinsfolk, it was known that Seth was a "well-to-do" farmer and even owned his own slaves. He had enough land to make them their own cemetery. The Strange family cemetery was also located near his home. However, Seth sold his home and moved his family to a larger farm, two miles west of Carnesville, Georgia.

There is a legend, from George's book, that Queen Mary of England gave Mary Strange, her cousin, a beautiful signet ring, to be worn by her and handed down generation after generation. Unfortunately, no one knows what has become of the ring.

More on Seth will be discussed later in the book.

Below is a part of John's will dealing with the Revolutionary War Veterans' Land Lottery:

John Strange, Sr.

January 10, 1827--November 7, 1831

Wife Martha, two sons Seth and Sterling. Two lots, one in Troup Co., and one in Dooley, "Drawn in my name." Wit: Gilmer, Chas. Baker, Saml. Payne.

The following are how several actual tombstones appear in Strange Cemetery, located in the woods behind the residence of Ralph Pruitt, on old Duncan Plantation near Nails Creek Baptist Church near Cornelius, Georgia:

John Strange DIED 1830, 87 YEARS OLD
Jesse Strange DIED 1837, 29 YEARS 5 MONTHS OLD
Martha Strange DIED 1833, 86 YEARS 5 MONTHS OLD
Mary Strange DIED 1838, 61 YEARS 7 MONTHS OLD
John Strange DIED 1833, 37 YEARS 10 MONTHS OLD
John Wilmot 1862

There were also 25-30 additional unmarked graves.

Some information encountered from the Passports of the Southeastern Pioneers, 1720-1823 about John Strange stated, "John Strange, a native of South Carolina, pass to Tensaw; he is one of the unfortunate travelers recently plundered in the neighborhood by some of the Red People."

The above was also printed exactly the same with the exception of the spelling of John's name being listed as John De Strange.

The first records of John's coming to America date back to 1756, according to an old account, (see Jesse section).

Supposedly, John came to America from Scotland/Ireland. In 1780 he moved from Virginia to South Carolina. All of John's war records indicate he has born in Virginia.

Land records from the State of Mississippi, County of Lauderdale show that in 1846 Starling purchased some land as indicated below:

STARLING STRANGE

Starling, was born in Virginia in 1776 and died in Lauderdale County, Mississippi. He married Nancy (of whom no maiden name has been traced) and it is possible that they had two children. All that is known about Nancy is that she was born in North Carolina in about 1783 and she died in 1850 in Lauderdale County, Mississippi.

Starling had one son named Jesse and maybe another named Seth. The boy named Seth is assumed to be Starling's son because his name was listed on an 1850 census report in Lauderdale County, Mississippi showing that Starling lived with Seth. Jesse was born in July of 1811 and Seth was born in about 1824. It is also known that Starling was remarried. His second wife's name was Sarah Deason.

Records of Starling Strange have been found dated from 1785-1799 when he served on Petit Jury in Union County, South Carolina. However, tax records show that Starling paid taxes in the state of Georgia in 1800 and that he obtained some land from his father, John Strange in Georgia in the year 1809. The 1830 census shows that Starling was living in Franklin County, Georgia, but the 1840 census shows that Starling was a resident of Bibb County, Alabama. He is listed in the Alabama census as "Sterling".

The following is a location file on Starling Strange.

JESSE STRANGE

Jesse Strange, Starling's son, passed away on January 3, 1901. Jesse was married three times. His first wife's name was Margurite Porter of Alabama. It is possible that she is buried at Liberty Baptist Church, near Moscow, Mississippi. They had three children, their names are:

William Strange
John Tyler Strange
Catherine Strange

The second time that Jesse married was to Missouri Anna Swaringen, also of Alabama. She is possibly buried at Liberty Baptist Church, also. They had seven children during the time that they were married. Their names were:

Jesse L.
James A.
Margaret
Clementine
Emeline
David
Emily

Jesse married a younger woman the third time, Mrs. Jane Bagett. They were married on May 29, 1890 in Lauderdale County, Mississippi. It is rumored that they had one son. This is not confirmed.

No record can be found of Jesse's sibling(s) (except for Seth that is listed above).

Jesse is buried next to a two year old Hamrick girl and an infant Hamrick boy (his grandchildren from Emily), and close to Lena Butler at Bond Cemetery in Bond, Mississippi in Stone County. None of the graves are marked and could not be located. This is the same cemetery that Dizzy Dean, the baseball player is buried in.

Jesse evidently liked to write. One piece of history was found in the home of David Strange after David's death that was probably written in Jesse's handwriting. It hinted that he might have been interested in genealogy too, if he indeed did write it.

It was written as follows:

David Strange, the son of Jesse Strange, the son of Starling Strange, the son of John Strange that emigrated from Scotland in the year 1756 and 2 brothers Robert and Joseph and located in South Carolina. John was a soldier in the war of 1776 and was located in the south side of Tugalo River to guard the Indian and keep them from crossing the river where he remained til

JESSE'S ACCOUNT BOOK

Jesse's account book was a book in which he kept a record of supplies that were sold in his store. He even wrote down services that were done for customers. You will find that he almost always recorded the customer's name, what was purchased, in what amount, and the price charged. His account book was handwritten, probably in Jesse's handwriting. This handwriting was very elaborate and the letters were all well formed. The following was taken from the account books of Jesse Strange dated from 1831. You will notice that his business gradually changed from a store business to a blacksmith operation. This also covers Jesse's life from about age 20 until about age 70, including businesses in Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama.

Jesse's account book was still in existence in the late 1980's and belonged to Essie Crow, Jesse's granddaughter. After her death, one of her children probably inherited it. Some copies of it were given to me by Charles H. Strange of Beltsville, Maryland. Some writing in the book, especially names were written in many angles, upside down, etc. They appear to be in David Strange, his sons, handwriting.

SETH STRANGE

This may be Starling's son but it cannot be determined for sure. Other than the 1850 Mississippi Census of Lauderdale County no other information about Seth has been located; however, his family information will be included at this point.

Seth Strange married Nicy Caroline Thomas on April 22, 1844. They lived in Lauderdale County, Mississippi. From 1847 to 1851 they were members of Salem Baptist Church. Seth was born in Alabama in 1824 and Caroline was born in Georgia in 1829. They had the following children: James M. Strange, born in Mississippi, circa 1845; Colom L. Strange, born in Mississippi, circa 1846; and Catherine Strange, born in Mississippi, circa 1849.

This is all of the information that I have on this Seth Strange; however, Seth is a traditional family name.

" We lived about a block from my grandparents, John T. Strange, when I was a child. My grandmother told my brother and me many things. When Grandpa came home from the Civil War (26 years old) they started to Texas. The northern soldiers had burned their home. Grandma said all they had was what she buried in the ground. (A set of heavy silver I wanted to buy but did not get) They put all their household belongings, 4 little children (my father was 2 years old) and grandmother's mother in a covered wagon and the others walked. Grandmother and her two sisters walked. It took them 3 months to come as they had a herd of cattle with them. They came from somewhere around Meridian, Mississippi. They bought land in Freestone County in east Texas. They had other children 13 in all. Two died of fever. They started out again west. Papa drove cattle across the swinging bridge in Waco when he was 9 years old. They settled in Commanche. Jimmy, a small boy, died there; so they moved to Indian Creek. Here, Lee, a 17 year old boy was killed by a horse. This time they moved to Bangs, where they spent the rest of their lives. Today their farm is full of gas wells. The entire J.T. Strange's family are dead."

"I have the coffee mill that came in the wagon from Mississippi. And my nephew, Fred, of Tupelo, Mississippi has the broad ax."

The following are excerpts from a letter written to Carl Strange in 1978 from Betsy Keller: however, this specific information was taken from the history of Freestone County, Texas Volume I.

One hundred years ago Mack C. Strange was born October 26, 1878 in Kemper County, Miss. He was the son of James A. Strange, well known farmer and saw mill operator of that state, and Christine Davis, daughter of John Allen Davis and June Swaringen. He was educated in his native state and began his business career in Mississippi. In 1901, Mr. Strange came to Texas locating at Wortham where he spent a year in a bank and then farmed until 1908. He became associated in the mercantile business with J F Wallis until September 1919, at which time he sold out to Wallis and became associated with First National Bank as vice-president. In 1925 Mr. Strange became president of the bank and for forty years guided it's progress and growth until his death July 7, 1965.

Mr. Strange was interested in his town and its welfare. He was president of the Housing Authority at the time of his death--he was influential in Wortham getting the Housing Authority. He also worked untiringly on securing an up to date hospital and doctors for Wortham.

"Mr. Mack" was a friend to all, he stood for the right of his beliefs. He could disagree with you and still be agreeable. One pastor of his church said they might not agree on every thing, but every Sunday he would look up and Mr. Strange was in "his pew".

From Town Talk of the Wortham Journal "One of the saddest days in Wortham was last Thursday when every one learned of the death of "Mr. Mack". He was one of the best loved citizens and every one will miss him."

THE FOLLOWING IS A COMPILATION
OF THREE GENERATIONS OF SETH
STRANGE'S, SON OF JOHN STRANGE,
FAMILY TREE. AS PREVIOUSLY
NOTED, A COMPLETE LIST OF HIS FAMILY TREE IS IN THE BOOK
WRITTEN BY GEORGE GARNETT STRANGE
ENTITLED SOME GEORGIA STRANGES AND KINSFOLK.

SETH STRANGE
Son of John Strange

Seth, the older of John's two sons, had married before he came into Georgia. His wife, was born June 14, 1777. It was presumed that she was a native of Union County, South Carolina, where John's family lived before coming to Georgia.

Seth located his home some three miles down stream on Nails Creek, where the old Federal Road, leading westward, crosses the creek. His old residence is still in existence at this date (1955) and is occupied and in good condition. It is estimated to be about 150 years old.

It was here Seth and Mary raised their family of eight children. There were no public schools in those early days. Settlers provided private schools for their children and employed private teachers. Seth was considered to be one of the well-to-do farmers of his day and was able to help provide good teachers.

He and his family became members of Old Nails Creek Baptist Church, situated one and a half miles west of his residence on the Federal Road. This old church was organized in 1787 and soon became the religious and social center for a large section of the country.

The Strange private cemetery was located about 300 yards southeast of Seth's residence, on a knoll overlooking the creek. It was here that many of the early generations of Stranges and kindred were buried. Seth owned several slaves and set aside a plot of ground for their cemetery.

Later in life, Seth sold his home on the creek and bought a larger farm on Middle River, two miles west of Carnesville, where he farmed on a more extensive scale. My father, his grandson, was made overseer of his farm. Seth died April 19, 1851 and was buried in the family cemetery on Nails Creek. His wife, Mary, died July 31, 1828, and was also buried there.

Listed below are several generations of the Seth Strange family. These have not been updated as have the Starling Strange family. If you would like to obtain more information on the Seth Strange family, it can be found in George Garnett Strange's book entitled, Some Georgia Strange and Kinsfolk.
