The generations preceding the one in the column on the left would have been born about 1800 and of course would be double the number.

Each generation going back in time will be twice the number. If your ancestors landed here in 1600 and you are under 30, you would be the 14th or 15th generation and be descended from over 16,000 people.

For a variety of reasons, families have altered the spelling of the last name or changed it completely. So in looking back and trying to get information from the county, city or town overseas that your family came from, make sure you include as much data as you can get before writing abroad.

WILLIS BOOKER (c1793-1866) m1815 SARAH MELTON

EARLY HISTORY OF THE BOOKER FAMILY

In 1983 Tillie Gunn enlisted the assistance of a professional researcher to trace some of the elusive clues about the Booker family in North Carolina. Dr. Jerry Cross did some extensive research in the N.C. Archives and reported the following information:

"The direct line from Willis Booker back to his great grandfather can be documented thoroughly. I also feel that the collateral lines outlined in the following report are accurate even though the documentation is not quite as strong. This report combines the facts uncovered in research and my interpretation of those facts in the context of North Carolina history.

"The earliest Booker found in the course of this project was JOHN BOOKER, whose wife Patience received a land grant from Lord Granville on June 9, 1761, for a tract of land on Buckhorn Creek which is located in eastern Chatham County near the Wake County line.

(Orange Co. Deed Bk 3, p189. Chatham Co. was formed from Orange Co. in 1770.)

"This was an unusual transaction in two ways. First, it was rare that a woman should receive a land grant in her name at that time in history. Secondly, the grant referred to Patience Booker as a "patent", a term generally reserved only for prosperous males. It appears that her husband John had intended to enter the claim for the land but became too ill to complete the transaction. Patience apparently entered the claim for her husband and the patent was issued in her name. John died less than four months later and his will was probated in November Court, 1761.

(Wake Co. Will Bk A, p23. The area where John Booker lived was near the Wake-Chatham County line. When John Booker died, it was all in Orange County. When the new county boundaries were drawn, some of the records went to each county. That's how John Booker's will wound up in Wake Co.)

"John Booker's will named his wife Patience, son James, and daughter Patience. Although his will names only one son, I feel certain that John Booker had three other sons: Samuel, Isaac, and Daniel. James was the youngest and the only one at home when the will was written. Apparently John Booker had already settled with his older sons before his death.

(This was not an uncommon practice, particularly if a second marriage was involved. The constant repetition of Christian names among the Booker children and the contemporary life dates are too abundant to be coincidence. Also, the will of James Booker (1819) of Chatham County mentions land owned by Booker in Cumberland County then occupied by one of his daughters and her husband. See Wake Co. will Bk A, p23; Chatham Co. original wills, State Archives, Raleigh, Daniel Booker, John Booker, and James Booker. See also Cumberland County Records, Estate Papers, State Archives, Raleigh, Papers of Isaac Booker.)

"Samuel and Isaac Booker moved to Cumberland County and established the family line there. Daniel, apparently the oldest son, and James, the youngest, remained in Chatham County on their father's land. They were residing there when the first federal census was taken in 1790.

(Heads of Families in the First Census of the United States, 1790, pp. 38, 87, hereinafter cited as 1790 census.)

"James (d. 1819) and his wife Phebe (last name unknown) Booker had the following children: Daniel, Enoch, Esther (married Buck Lanier), Betsy (married Rory Wommack), Patience (married Barnaby Thomas), Rebecca (married Thomas Rollins) and an unidentified daughter (deceased when will was written) who had married Young Jones.
(Chatham Co. original wills, James Booker.)

"Daniel (d. 1783) had married a woman named Sarah (last name unknown) and had three children: John, Sarah, and Ann.
(Chatham Co. original wills, Daniel Booker.)

"There was obviously a large age differential between Daniel and James, suggesting that James may have been a child of John Booker by a second wife, which may also account for why his other sons were not named in the will.

"John, son of Daniel Booker, married a woman named Naomi (last name unknown) who was called Omy. They lived in Chatham Co. and raised ten children: John, Isaac, Hardy, James, William, Sally (married a Stevens), Nancy (married a Hathcock), Polly (married a Mims), Fereby (married a Hix) and Susannah.
(1790 census p87; 1800 census pp. 207, 209; and Chatham Co. original wills, John Booker.)

"This John Booker who died in 1799 was the grandfather of Willis Booker through his son John. Little could be found about John, the father of Willis, because he left the state before his death. That he was definitely the father of Willis was determined by correlating the census records with other documents relating to the family. The 1850 census gives Willis's age as 56, so he was born about 1794.
(1850 census, Monroe Co. Ala.)

"The 1800 census for North Carolina lists only four Bookers with males under ten in the household: Isaac (Cumberland Co.), John, Naomi, and James (all Chatham Co.)
(1800 census, Cumberland Co. p378; Chatham Co. pp. 207, 209, 210.)

"The estate papers for Isaac Booker in 1801 listed an orphan, John, as his only male heir; thus, Isaac can be eliminated.
(Cumberland Co. Records, Estates Papers, State Archives, Raleigh, Papers of Isaac Booker.)

"James left a detailed will naming all his children plus the children of his deceased daughter. There is no Willis named, and the number of heirs in the will corresponds to the number of children in his household as listed in the census; so James can also be eliminated.
(Chatham Co. original wills, James Booker, 1819.)

"Naomi, widow of John Booker (d. 1799) still had four sons living in her household in 1800. Her other son, John, had established his own household which included four males under ten and two females under ten.
(1800 census, Chatham Co., pp. 207, 209)

"One of the males was Willis Booker, and Naomi was his grandmother. The name of John Booker's wife, the mother of Willis Booker, could not be determined in the time allotted.

"On May 3, 1802, John Booker bought 210 acres of land on Cedar Creek in Cumberland County from Phillip Roberts for L. 110 current money. He moved his family to Cumberland County shortly afterwards.
(Cumberland Co. Deed BK 21 p67. See also deed from Booker to Wright, Deed BK 28 p264.)

"It was in Cumberland County that Willis Booker married Sarah Melton in January, 1815.
(Cumberland Co. Marriage Bonds, State Archives, Raleigh.)

"In October of that year, John Booker sold his 210 acres to John Wright and left the state.
(Cumberland Co. Deed BK 28 p264)

"The crucial question is whether or not Willis Booker left North Carolina with his father. According to the surviving records, Willis never bought any land in either Chatham or Cumberland counties, so while living in Cumberland County after his marriage, he would have been living on land belonging to his father or his wife's father or to some other relative. Circumstantial evidence, however, leads me to believe that Willis lived in Moore County for about two years before moving to Alabama.

"First of all, Chatham, Cumberland, and Moore counties were adjoining units in 1815. One would not have to move very far to be in the next county. Virtually all of the deed records for Moore County before 1860 were destroyed in a courthouse fire; consequently, there is no way to thoroughly check for land ownership in Moore County. Too, if he knew that he was only staying temporarily he may have rented a house and farm. The few surviving records from Moore County do not mention a Willis Booker, but since he was there for a short time, his absence from the records is not very significant. Perhaps the most convincing argument that Willis was in Moore County for a brief time is the fact that records show that two of his children were born in Moore County. The boundaries between Moore, Chatham, and Cumberland were clearly defined by 1815 and there is little chance that the county of birth is in error because of a geographical vagueness."
